

from the paper tissue originally examined by Mark T. Grant of the Boston DPS Laboratory. The predicate for the relevance of this blood is the claim by Grant that human blood from an ABO type B individual is present on the tissue from the couch. Since Plante was determined to be an ABO type O individual, ABO type B blood could not originate from her. Individual blood stains on these items and random surveys